CommuteInfo Connections - July 2015

Summertime, Air Quality Action Days & Sharing Rides

As the temperature rises this summer, you might hear more reports of "Air Quality Action Days" on the news. But what can you do?

The Southwest Pennsylvania Air Quality Partnership, Inc. forecasts Air Quality Action Days. Using a color-coded scale, the forecast informs people about the predicted ground level ozone and fine particulate matter levels and any precautions that need to be taken.

The Partnership encourages voluntary actions to reduce air pollution emissions, especially on Air Quality Actions Days:

- Limit your daytime driving whenever possible by taking the bus, carpooling, biking or walking.
- When you drive, try to minimize "cold starts" by combining trips and errands so your vehicle's catalytic converter remains warm. Most vehicle emissions occur in the first few minutes of engine operation, when the converter is cold and inefficient.
- Reduce unnecessary engine idling by parking your car and walking into a building rather than using the drive-through.
- Refuel after dark to prevent some of the resulting gasoline vapors from becoming smog. Avoid spilling gasoline, and stop when the pump shuts off automatically.
- Keep your car tuned-up. The emissions from one poorly maintained car equal that from 25 properly-functioning cars!
